NIALL McLAUGHLIN ARCHITECTS

This vibrant practice has gone from strength to strength over recent years, while picking up architectural awards from RIBA and others. Its portfolio encompasses significant cultural and campus commissions, including the library for Magdalene College, Cambridge, along with original and imaginative designs for bespoke newbuild houses. Of these, a recent example includes Saltmarsh House (above), a highly contextual and site-sensitive home on the Isle of Wight (featured in House & Garden in April 2024). niallmclaughlin.com | @niallmclaughlinarchitects

P JOSEPH STUDIO

Twin brothers Philip and Peter Joseph have built their practice on the belief that architecture, interiors and furniture should be envisioned as a unified whole. Their serene and uncluttered style has won them clients such as the fashion designer Erdem, for whom they recently finished a second flagship store on Sloane Street, SW1, characterised by his signature blue-grey tones and featuring hand-painted canvas wall panels. p-joseph.com @pjosephstudio

SUZY HOODLESS

When tastemaker Suzy, a former magazine stylist, set up her interior design studio over 25 years ago, she brought together her love of modernist furniture and French and Scandinavian textiles, and a desire to learn from the best examples of design. As a result, she and her west London team have earned a reputation for creating striking, practical spaces – from family homes to members' clubs, which are both stylish and comfortable. suzyhoodless.com | @suzyhoodless

GERALDINE DOHOGNE

After years working in hotel design, Geraldine (whose first major residential project is in this issue) launched her studio in 2020. Her refined interiors strike a balance between, in her words, 'artistry and utility', shaped by bespoke details and materials. In addition to jobs in Mexico, London and Belgium, the studio is launching a range of one-off, material-led objects this year, kicking off with a marble vase and bronze wall lamp. geraldinedohogne.com | @geraldinedohogne

CARLOS GARCÍA

An expert in the English country house look made relevant for modern life, Carlos has a winning way with colour and pattern. Operating with one assistant, he takes on a limited number of projects each year. He has worked with an architectural historian to bring authenticity to a Regency-style newbuild in West Sussex, and is currently restoring an 18th-century Norfolk house built for Horace Walpole. carlosgarciainteriors.com @carlosgarciainteriors

HOWE & FOUND

The organic, handmade quality of Tamsin Saunders' interiors reflects her holistic approach: she invests a great deal of time in planning structure, layouts and joinery before starting on decoration, and then furnishes with mostly antiques and 'one-off lucky finds'. The result is soulful, with nature-inspired colours and perfectly imperfect details. She works with just one assistant; recent projects include a Victorian home inspired by the client's love of India. homeandfound.com | @homeandfound

ALEX DAULEY

Alongside her interior design studio, which made its WOWhouse debut last year, Alex Dauley continues to work on an impressive number of side projects, too. United in Design, the charity she founded with Sophie Ashby, is fast approaching its sixth birthday, and we are looking forward to the launch of her latest venture: a design app called Home by Method. That she does it all with so much style is the icing on the cake. alexdauley.com @alexandriadauley

TAYLOR HOWES

The fact that more than 60 per cent of their work comes from repeat clients is testament to Karen Howes and Jane Landino's personable and collaborative approach. It is something they have instilled in their 30-strong team, which is in the process of completing several major projects. These include a four-year design programme in the Swiss Alps, a newbuild in the Middle East and two properties in London. taylorhowes.co.uk @taylorhowesdesigns

McLEAN QUINLAN

Location, location, location sums up the work of mother-daughter duo Fiona McLean and Kate Quinlan, alongside Kate's partner Alastair Bowden. Based in London and Winchester, the practice is known for its use of natural materials and huge panes of glass. In many cases, the latter emphasise glorious views over countryside and, in cities, provide natural light to always elegant interiors. mcleanquinlan.com @mcleanquinlan

HOLLIE BOWDEN

Clean-lined architecture often forms the canvas for Hollie's curation of objects and furniture. She expertly mixes contemporary pieces with antiques, and colour with neutrals, while incorporating a sense of tactility. Her skill has earned her a global client list, with a heritage building in Lisbon and a Georgian house in the De Beauvoir area in east London being among her recent projects. holliebowden.com | @holliebowden
